Trading by Real Examples

Let's have a look at another tradable instrument - Gold. You can see the daily chart of gold. I have encircled all of the potential signals or market indications for a continuation or reversal price action would have generated. I wouldn't have taken all of them. I would have surely missed really good signals and not taken some bad ones. But in the end, the important thing is your equity curve rising, as opposed to falling. In order to be a successful trader, you need to be flexible and don't be scared to cut your losses fast. I believe that this has been one of the most important factors to become successful in trading. The other one is letting winners run as much as possible. Enough talking, let's have a look at the gold example below:

XAUUSD, D
Gold/U.S. Dollar

Daily GOLD

I have placed a number on all of the potential trading signals that I have gotten from the market and I will walk you through each and every one of them.

1) Here you have a pin bar and then two consecutive bullish rejections. These are all bearish signals and mean that you can either enter a short position or exit your long positions if you have any.

2) The second setup we have is a bearish engulfing pattern. It is showing me that the number of buyers we had from the first session is totally “engulfed” by the number of sellers, thus creating more bearish momentum. Bearish engulfing patterns are extremely beneficial, especially in falling markets.

3) The third setup is coming after one bullish rejection and then there comes a bearish candle engulfing the previous two green (bullish) candles, which hints at further selling pressure as we can see in the next few sessions.

4) There is a pin bar that has formed and is indicating a possible correction or reversal. In such a fast-moving market I would prefer to wait and receive another bullish confirmation from the chart. As we can see, price really slows down and enters a choppy (range-trading) environment.

5) Price continues to fall and shows a few bearish rejections. We can see long bearish tails and then profit taking, which takes price up to the previous resistance area.

6) There is an inside bar that formed just below the resistance area and is actually giving us a bearish signal to short

7) There are a few bullish rejections and the price continues to fall, where it finally finds some support and then later reverses

8) There is another bullish pin bar that is forming on the daily time frame. Just like the previous one, this pin bar is forming in a downtrend, which means taking a contrarian view and going long. For me it is still a premature signal and I would be waiting for another confirmation from price before entering into a long trade here.

9) There are a few confirmations that come from the bearish rejections we can see here. This gives the green light for more fresh buyers, and they finally show up to push the price up to new highs.

10) There is a bullish engulfing candle, which is actually engulfing the previous three bearish candles and is giving a great signal for going long. If you want to minimise your risk, you could wait for a retracement towards the middle of the big green (bullish) candle. That is what I am doing if I have an indication from a lower time frame that price might retrace. In general, towards the middle of the candle there is a big concentration of buyers and I use it as a reliable support level. That is why I like to place my standing buy orders 10 pips above the middle of the bullish candle if I am not taking the trade from the lower time frames.

11) We can see that the price is advancing quite a lot and is reaching new highs. At number 11 we have another small bullish engulfing pattern. If you are already in a position, you could scale in (look at the next part of this manual for the exact “scaling-in” rules) and open another long position.

12) There is a small bearish rejection candle, which also gives the green light to more buyers to add long positions to the already established ones.

13) At this moment, there are a few more bearish rejections, which create another bullish opportunity.

14) The final setup is a bearish engulfing signal, which indicates a reversal. Ideally, you would be looking at closing your long positions at this level. If you have a trailing stop, it might be under the lows of 13, but if you are flexible enough, such a signal, especially if it is at a major resistance area, might hint of closing, at least partially, your positions.

PART 2

The Scale-In Technique

Colibri Trader

Pyramiding or also known as “scaling in/out” of a position is an advanced strategy that should be used only once you are really comfortable with your trading. I am about to share with you an advanced trading strategy that I use only when I am convinced that we have a strong trend establishing. I have used it on all FX pairs and indices (DAX, DOW). I believe it could be used on everything trending, but those are the instruments I have tested and traded with this strategy. There are no indicators at all and it is aimed at stacking as many positions as possible only in the direction of the major trend. Let me start off with the rules of this technique.

RULES

- 1) Look for a trading signal from a daily time frame in the direction of the main trend and then and only then go down to a 4 hour chart
- 2) Take only 4 hour engulfing bars
- 2A) An engulfing bar could be a formation of not only two bars, but three. As long as the second and third bar are “engulfing” the previous one, I do consider this a valid signal.
- 3) Trigger is +1 break of the engulfing bar
- 4) Stop is 10 pips below the engulfing bar’s low or a previous swing low
- 5) Use only previous monthly/weekly/daily LOWS and HIGHS for support and resistance.
- 6) Use monthly/weekly/daily LOWS and HIGHS for profit taking

Let me give an example and clarify this further...
I am looking at the EUR/JPY. There was a big hammer (pin bar) on the daily time frame and a monthly support level. Then I go down to a 4 hour chart and start looking for ONLY bullish engulfing patterns. Let's see what I have found...

DAILY CHART

Initial Signal

Pin Bar

16th October, 2014

And now go to the 4 hour chart...

4 HOUR CHART

Entry Signal

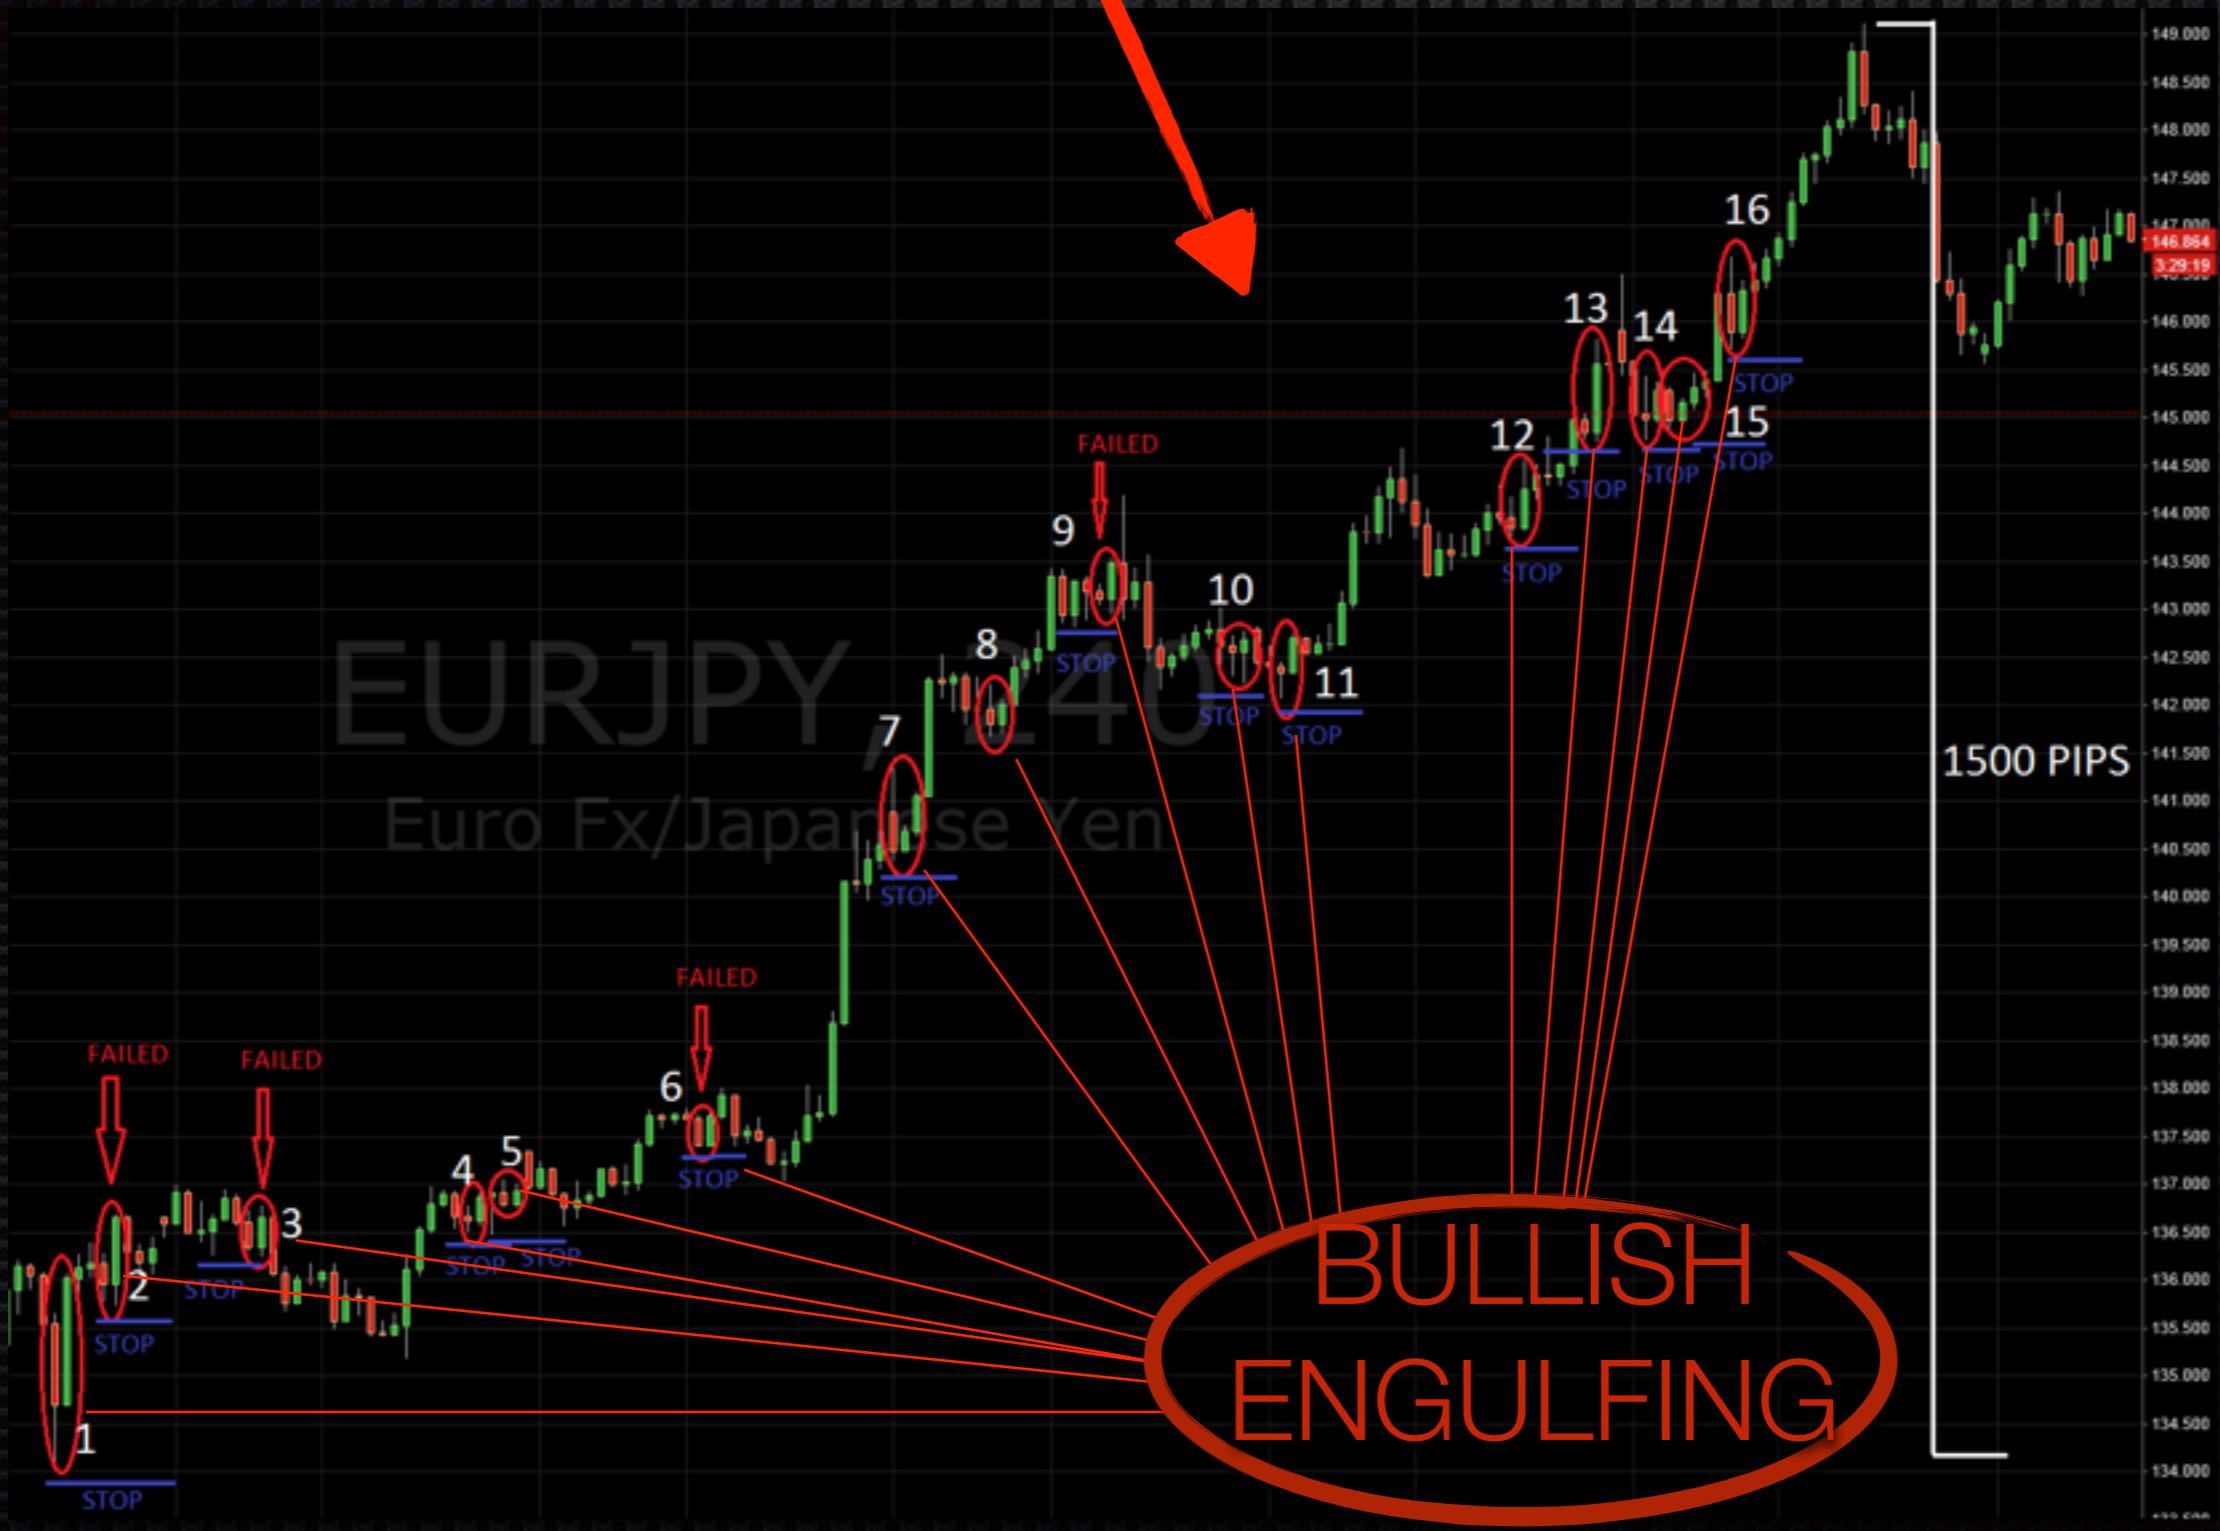

BULLISH
ENGULFING

16 Oct 2014

The arrow above is showing the region after the 15th of October, 2014 when the trading signal appears on the daily time frame. Let me go into more details and show you how exactly I am trading with this advanced technique.

4 HOUR CHART

STOP

For LONG Positions:

My Stops Are Always Placed 10 Pips Below The Low Of The Candlestick Or Nearest Swing Low

STOP

For SHORT Positions:

My Stops Are Always Placed 10 Pips Above The High Of The Candlestick Or Nearest Swing High

So, let's summarise what is happening above. There are roughly 16 obvious bullish engulfing patterns (all encircled in red) on the 4 hour chart. As I have laid out in the rules above, I do count as a bullish engulfing one red (bearish) candle engulfed by two consecutive bullish green candles, as well. Therefore, there might have been a few more bullish engulfing patterns, but I have encircled the most obvious and the ones I would have considered when trading live. My aim is to take all bullish engulfing patterns from the 4 hour time frame. I would have been stopped out on 4 out of the 16 signals I got. That means a 75% winning ratio. This is an extremely high figure but I am not after a big winning ratio.

What I am looking for is a big trend, and what experience has taught me - it doesn't matter what your winning ratio is, it only matters how long you are in a profitable position. I have actually tested this strategy and found that even with a 15% win-ratio, I would have still come out close to break-even. That is why it is important to have the right psychology mindset and hold on to a winning trade as much as humanly possible. Having said this, it doesn't mean that I am perfect and that I have mastered this skill. Indeed, I am still having hard times sometimes to hold on to a winning position for a long period of time. But with every trade I become stronger and better. That's the ultimate aim of trading- constant improving, while you are being profitable!

Let's make a simple calculation and see how much we would have made if we traded all of those setups (which most of us probably wouldn't). If we decided to close all of the positions at 148.00 (major resistance area), we would have gotten the following results.

Trade	Bullish	Entry	Stop	P/L in pips
1	✓	136.04	134.03	1196
2	Failed	136.68	135.69	(99)
3	Failed	136.67	136.15	(52)
4	✓	136.89	136.41	1111
5	✓	136.95	136.37	1105
6	Failed	137.73	137.31	(42)
7	✓	141.07	140.39	693
8	✓	142.03	141.58	597
9	Failed	143.51	142.79	(72)
10	✓	142.70	142.05	530
11	✓	142.71	141.99	529
12	✓	144.28	143.57	372
13	✓	145.58	144.66	242
14	✓	145.30	144.67	270
15	✓	145.34	144.67	266
16	✓	146.36	145.62	164
TOTAL PIPS				7075

It appears that if we have traded all setups and waited until the price reached the resistance area at 148.00, we would have made 7075 pips. It sounds incredible, but in real life the result would have probably been different. You probably wouldn't have traded all of these setups and you wouldn't have held such a long time. Holding a position long enough is what makes the difference between a millionaire and a broke. In this case, holding a single long position since the 16th of October would have returned over 1000 pips. Using this scaling-in technique you could have earned seven times more! That is what you should be after in the long term.

When I am trading, I am not really thinking about my winning ratio - what is important for me is to be in a big trend and get the most out of it. As you can see in the example above, a risk: reward of 1:10 is possible. You just need to aim at this type of performance. In my experience, I have met all types of traders, and the ones that are really profitable are the longer-term traders. From all of the scalpers I know (and believe me they are many), I have only heard of one person who is profitable. That is why I believe the best way to approach the market (especially if you are a new trader) is to look at the higher time frames. As a beginner, the lowest time frame you should be looking at should be the 4 hour one.

The technique that I am suggesting above is for more experienced traders, therefore I do not recommend you use it straight away. Once you are profitable for three consecutive months on a daily time frame, then and only then should you consider using more advanced techniques like this one. Now, let me give you another example of this technique - Crude Oil. Have a look first at a clean 4 hour chart and try to figure out where those engulfing setups are.

Now, let me show you where I see those engulfing candlestick patterns appearing.

4 HOUR CHART

BULLISH
ENGULFING

! MANY CONSECUTIVE PROFITABLE POSITIONS=BIG TREND !

From the chart above, you can see the many opportunities that you have on the 4 hour chart. Although such trends do not appear on a regular basis, you can be sure that if you are not being stopped out in so many consecutive trades, you are in an extremely strong trend. From all of the 14 setups that I have found, only one would have been stopped - number 14. All other positions would have survived.

Now, instead of counting the thousands of pips you could have made by utilising this strategy, I would like to bring your attention to two of the potential entries - number 7 and number 10. The question here is why I placed my stop so far away. First of all, for entry number 7, the stop is placed not just above the high of the bearish engulfing pattern, but above the nearest swing high - or the bullish rejections of the previous few candles. The reason why I placed my stop so far away on entry number 10 is the same. There were a few rejection candles nearby and that is the main reason why. Let me zoom in on those two entries so you can see well. The first screenshot shows entry number 7.

ENTRY 7

As can be seen from the screenshot above, the stop is 10 pips above all three rejections. Let's proceed to the second entry - number 10.

ENTRY 10

That's NOT The End

Further details about my trading system could be found in my trading course- The Price Action Method (<http://colibritrader.com/trading-course/>). The trading technique explained above could be used on its own. Although, I do recommend that you get the full trading course, which encapsulates my whole trading career as a prop trader. It also can help you achieve a similar or better results as the ones given below, as long as you put the effort in.
